Chris,

LOROL's only direct interest in this proposal (S17 and S18) concerns the route mile or so between Camden Junction and London Euston, when Alliance Rail's services will run alongside LOROL's 'DC Line' service between Watford Junction and London Euston (3tph per direction).

So long as robust paths exist for Alliance services on this section, then LOROL will have no objection or further comment to make.

However, given that the present LOROL Concession Agreement with TfL expires in November 2014, TfL's views on this matter will carry more weight, given the indicated start date (December 2013) of the Alliance Rail services. I expect that Matthew Rheinberg, of TfL, will reply separately to the Consultation in due course.
